INSPECTORS INSTRUCTED

Know What They Will Have to Do On Tuesday.

All of the presidents of the Boards of Inspectors of Elections attended the meeting held at the office of the Secretary of the Territory yesterday, and there was a full discussion with Chief Clerk Buckland of the problems that will confront the inspectors next Tuesday. Of course, there were innumerable questions as to the laws governing elections, and these were answered so that the inspectors will have a perfect knowledge of their duties, and be ready for the prompt solution of all problems that may present themselves.

The official ballot, copies of which the party managers have been desperately trying to get hold of, was shown, and the attention of the inspectors was called to the water-mark running through the ballot paper. Any attempt to work in any other ballot can thus be frustrated, for there are no legal ballots without the water-mark.

The inspectors were told that there could be no change made in the list of voters, excepting through the Board of Registration, which will sit in the Capitol building all day Tuesday. Any transfer not made by the Board can not be recognized.

Candidates must notify the inspectors on Monday of the names of the helpers they propose to employ at each precinct. No helpers will be recognized whose names have not been thus submitted.

If, through sudden illness, or any other cause, an inspector should be unable to perform his duties, the remaining two inspectors can appoint a third to fill such temporary vacancy if unable to communicate with the Governor.

Attention was drawn to the need for setting apart space for workers in the outside booths. And the inspectors were told that they were to seal all packages returned to the Secretary's office excepting the official returns, which are to be sent in a separate envelope, printed in red ink.

Notice of the withdrawal of any candidate must be made to the Secretary by such candidate, and also to the inspectors of every precinct—and such notice must be posted at the booths before the election begins.

The inspectors must return the keys of the booths to the Secretary's office when returning documents on Tuesday night.

Should any trouble or misunderstanding arise in any precinct, day or night, the inspectors were ordered to notify the Secretary's office immediately, by telephone. If that should not be sufficient, then authorization was given to send in a messenger with details.

Sealed packages of ballots are in the hands of all inspectors, to be opened only on Tuesday morning in the presence of the people at each polling place. Each seal has the impression of the following words, "Election Documents," with the letters "T. H." in the center of the seal. If these seals have been tampered with, it will be prima facie evidence of fraud.

No trouble is anticipated at the polls, unless it should be on the part of some over-zealous voter or worker, as it is believed that all candidates and their friends will endeavor to check, prevent or suppress trouble.

The inspectors know that they are representing the Territory, not political parties or individuals, and all present expressed the determination that there should be an honest election and a straight count, so that the results should show the wishes of the voters as expressed by their ballots.

Clerk Buckland said that it would be appreciated at the Secretary's office if the inspectors, or any candidate or voter, would send in from time to time from neighboring telephones any news of the count, and of the results, to enliven the long night of the staff on duty. The Secretary's telephone number is "Main 305."

GAS WORK RUSHING.

A large force of men is pushing the Gas Company's mains out toward the Punahou district. Mains have been laid within the past few days out Beretania to Alapai and up Alapai to Kinau. Here the main divides, one branch running out Kinau, while another runs up Lunaliio. A branch of the Lunaliio street main runs up Kapioian to Green and goes both ways on that street. One end of the Green street pipe turns up Hackfeld and branches out along Prospect. The other will serve Thurston avenue. At present the mains on Prospect and Lunaliio streets are being pushed as rapidly as possible. An immense shipment of fixtures has been delayed somewhere on the road and has interfered somewhat with the installation of lights. So many people are taking the gas that the company is taxed to the limit to connect the houses as fast as applications are made.

CLOSE OF CAMPAIGN

Candidates Were Out Carrying on Their Fight Yesterday.

This, the last day of what has been one of the hottest campaigns ever fought in Hawaii, sees the tide of Henry's strength still rising and the fortunes of Brown on the ebb. The campaign has been almost ferocious on Oahu, and reports from the other islands indicate that it has been scarcely less savage there. Indeed, it would not be surprising if there arises, on Kauai especially, at least one and possibly two criminal prosecutions as a result of alleged violations of the election laws in their preliminaries. What will happen there on election day itself, no man can say.

WILL KEEP ORDER.

But, so far as Oahu is concerned, it is believed that good order will prevail at the polls. "If has been the hottest campaign I ever saw," said Comedian-Candidate Jim Quinn yesterday, "and the most mixed. It will end tomorrow night, and the ending will be spirited. But I believe that election day itself will be very quiet. The voters will all be sober, and will be watching the returns. And I do not anticipate any trouble at the polls."

The election will be closely watched by all parties, and of course every precaution will be taken to prevent trouble. But, if there is no drunkenness, there is not apt to be trouble. Today will be devoted to active campaigning, and tonight the Republicans will hold what they intend shall be the largest meeting of the campaign at Palace Square. The speaking will be from the band stand in the Capitol grounds, so it was said yesterday. The Fusionists, led by Attorney Ashford, having stormed and captured the band stand on Saturday night, thereby violating the precedent that no political meetings should be held within the grounds, the Republicans will claim that they have the same right—and will exercise it.

CAMPAIGNING ON SUNDAY.

The Republican candidates were out campaigning yesterday, notwithstanding the fact that it was Sunday. A series of meetings were held all up and down Kalihi, from the Detention Camp well up into the valley. They were, however, only fairly well attended. The Hawaiians for the most part preferred to remain at home on the Sabbath, and the other political parties took a rest. The Fusionists will close their campaign tonight at Aala Park. It is probable that the Home Rule scarecrow was resting yesterday, likewise, as nothing more was heard of the story that Poepeo was going to withdraw. In fact, that Home Rule scarecrow needed a rest. It has been one of the humors of the campaign, like Candidate Quinn, but it has been overworked, and it has not the same exuberant vitality as the candidate for supervisor. Besides, the scarecrow may be needed in another campaign—and it is not thought by those best posted that Candidate Quinn will be.

The Manchuria is due today although she did not leave Yokohama until the 11th, two days late. It is probable that she will arrive this afternoon. She has over 1000 tons of freight for this port, so it is not likely that she will sail until tomorrow at least.

REV. E. W. THWING TELLS OF JAPAN IN WAR TIME

A large audience greeted Rev. E. W. Thwing last evening at the First Methodist church, where he spoke on Japan in war time and of the Russian warships that he saw in the Orient. Mr. Thwing took as his text the passage beginning, "Those that go down to the sea in ships," and began his address with a review of events on the Pacific pointing out that this ocean was to be the theater of the world's greatest events during the coming century. The present war meant that Japan was to be among the leaders in the history-making of the next hundred years. The land of the chrysanthemum is ready to receive the truths of Christianity. It is for us to say whether the Orient is to have a Christian leader or not.

Mr. Thwing spoke of his arrival at Yokohama and the care with which the liner had to be piloted in through the mines in the harbor. The speaker arrived in Tokio in time to witness the celebration of the victory at Mukden. The newsboys had bells attached to their clothes so one could tell when an "extra" was out by the tinkling of the bells. This war seems to have made the Japanese thoughtful and they are welcoming the gospel story. In the great Toyama hospital, where there are 6000 convalescent Japanese soldiers, an assembly of about 600 greeted Mr. Thwing and other ministers at a gospel service and 60 expressed a desire to lead Christian lives.

The speaker dwelt much on the sacrifices the people were gladly making to aid the carrying on of the war. The fathers and mothers give their sons and do not expect them to return, so that when they do it is a greater joy than it would be otherwise. Some of the people are giving up one meal a day, a Patriotic Doctors' Association is treating patients free so that the government physicians may devote all their time to the wounded. Servants are giving of their small wages.

Mr. Thwing then told of his observations in China and emphasized the fact that Japanese influence was dominant in that empire. The Japanese school system is being introduced and the relations of the countries are becoming more and more intimate. America, the speaker declared, was making a tremendous mistake in the way she was enforcing the Chinese exclusion law. American goods are being boycotted and millions of dollars

CHE FE RAID ON A PLANT

Chinese Gamblers Start Games to Help A. M. Brown's Campaign.

The so-called che fa games found by the esteemed Star on Saturday did cover a plant, after all. And it is reported on good authority that Apana, the Chinese policeman, had a hand in the planting.

"It was reported to me on Thursday that two che fa games were to be opened," said Attorney-General Andrews, "and I thought it was very strange that the games should be opened now, when there had been no gambling games running in Honolulu for months. I reported to Deputy Sheriff Rawlins on Friday that information had come to me that two che fa games were to be opened, and that I had been told that his man Apana was interested in them. I told him that he would better look out for them. He answered that he would. As the story came to me, the games were to be opened, one on Liliha street over the stable, and
